

SUMMARY: The document below is the Prerogative Court of Canterbury copy of the will, dated 1 August 1541 and proved 23 July 1544, of Elizabeth (nee Scrope) Peche (living 1542), first cousin of Elizabeth (nee Scrope) Beaumont de Vere (d.1537), Countess of Oxford, second wife of John de Vere (1442-1513), 13th Earl of Oxford.

FAMILY BACKGROUND

The testatrix was born Elizabeth Scrope, the daughter and co-heir of Robert Scrope, the third son of Henry Scrope (1418-1458/9), 4th Baron Scrope of Bolton, and his wife, Elizabeth Scrope (d. 10 May 1504), the daughter of John Scrope (b. c. 1388, d. 15 November 1455), 4th Baron Scrope of Masham, Lord Treasurer of England, and his wife, Elizabeth Chaworth (d.1466?). Through his grandparents, Richard Scrope (d. 29 August 1420), 3rd Lord Scrope of Bolton, and Margaret Neville (d.1463/4), daughter of Ralph Neville, 1st Earl of Westmorland, and Margaret Stafford (d. 9 June 1396), Robert Scrope was descended from Geoffrey Plantagenet (1113–1151), King Henry II (1133–1189) and King Edward I (1239–1307) of England. See Richardson, Douglas, Plantagenet Ancestry (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing, 2004), pp. 254-5, 538-1, 645, 670-3; the entry for Scrope of Masham in The Complete Peerage, p. 564-6; and the ODNB entries for Henry Scrope (c.1376-1415), 3rd Baron Scrope of Masham, and John Scrope (1437/8-1498), 5th Baron Scrope of Bolton.

Robert Scrope married Katherine Zouche by dispensation dated 9 November 1469 (see Gibbons, A., Ely Episcopal Records (Lincoln: James Williamson, 1891), p. 225, available online), and by her had four daughters: Elizabeth, the testatrix; Anne, who married Thomas Redman of Bossall; Margaret, a nun at Barking; and Agnes. The testatrix leaves bequests in the will below to her sister Anne Redman, and to Anne Redman's daughter, Dame Anne Willestropp, and granddaughter, Eleanor Willestropp. She also leaves a bequest to her unmarried sister, Anne Scrope, and to her sister, Dame Margaret Scrope, formerly a nun at Barking. This would appear to be the same Dame Margaret Scrope mentioned in the will of Elizabeth (nee Scrope) Beaumont De Vere (d.1537), Countess of Oxford:

Item, I give & bequeath to my cousin, Dame Margaret Scrope, five pounds in money.

Both the testatrix and her sister, Dame Margaret Scrope, were first cousins of the Countess.

The testatrix' first cousin, Margaret (nee Scrope) de la Pole (d.1515), widow of Edmund de la Pole (1472?-1513), 8th Earl of Suffolk, a claimant to the throne who was executed in 1513, lived with the testatrix and Sir John Peche during the last years of her life. See Harris, Barbara J., English Aristocratic Women 1450-1550 (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2002), p. 173, available online. For the will of Margaret (nee Scrope) de la Pole, see TNA PROB 11/18/128.

For the will of the testatrix' first cousin Elizabeth (nee Scrope) Beaumont de Vere (d.1537), Countess of Oxford, see TNA PROB 11/27/144. For the will of the testatrix' first cousin Mary (nee Scrope) Jerningham Kingston (d.1548), see TNA PROB 11/32/320.

For the Scrope pedigree, see Norcliffe, Charles Best, ed., The Visitation of Yorkshire in the Years 1563 and 1563 by William Flower, Vol. 16, (London: Harleian Society, 1881), p. 280, available online. For the Redman pedigree, see Greenwood, William, The Redmans of Levens and Harewood, (Highgate: Titus Wilson, 1905), pp. 117-19, available online.

The testatrix' relations are known to have been owners of books and manuscripts:

The Foyle manuscript is an excellent example of the kind of 'reading circle' mentioned above; as Meale points out, it 'is richly suggestive of the kind of relationships, often encompassing a shared piety which joined women together . . . ' (Meale, oft sibus 35). The manuscript evidently remained at Barking until the dissolution; an inscription records that the book was given by Margaret Scrope, who was a nun at Barking prior to the dissolution, to Mistress Agnes Goldwell, a gentlewoman in the household of her sister, Elizabeth Scrope Peche. This inscription connects the manuscript with the book-owning female Scropes. The need for a detailed study of the reading habits of the female Scropes has been pointed out before. However a brief summary is not amiss. The children and grandchildren of Henry, Fourth Baron Scrope of Bolton and his wife, Elizabeth Scrope (a distant cousin) were avid readers and patrons of vernacular literature, especially the women. The Scrope women, in particular, provide evidence of the extent to which manuscripts passed between lay and religious women readers, suggesting that the needs and tastes of devout laywomen were not so very different from their religious sisters.

See Wada, Yoko, ed., A Companion to Ancrene Wisse (Cambridge: D.S. Brewer, 2003), pp. 166-8, available online.

MARRIAGE

The testatrix married Sir John Peche (d. 1 January 1522), by whom she had no issue. For his will, see TNA PROB 11/20/389. For the Peche pedigree, see Robertson, Scott, 'Peche of Lullingstone', Archaeologia Cantiana, Vol. XVI, 1886, pp. 227-40, available online at:

<https://www.kentarchaeology.org.uk/Research/Pub/ArchCant/Vol.016%20-%201886/page%20v%20+%20vi%20%20contents.htm>

For Sir John Peche's sister, Elizabeth (nee Peche) Hart Brooke (d. 16 July 1544), who married firstly John Hart (d.1507), and secondly George Brooke, brother of Thomas

Brooke (d. 19 July 1529), 8th Baron Cobham, see the will of Thomas Brooke, 8th Baron Cobham, TNA PROB 11/23/361.

OTHER PERSONS MENTIONED IN THE WILL

Two of the testatrix' executors were the courtiers William Fitzwilliam (c.1490–1542), Earl of Southampton, and his stepbrother, Sir Anthony Browne (c.1500–1548). William Fitzwilliam (c.1490–1542), Earl of Southampton, was a younger son of Sir Thomas Fitzwilliam (d. 1498) of Aldwark and his wife, Lucy (d. 1534), daughter and coheir of John Neville, first Marquess Montagu, and niece of Richard Neville, earl of Warwick (the Kingmaker). Sir Anthony Browne (c.1500–1548), was the son of Sir Anthony Browne (d. 1506) and his wife, Lucy (d. 1534), widow of Sir Thomas Fitzwilliam (d.1498) of Aldwark, Yorkshire, and daughter and coheir of John Neville, Marquess Montagu.

Thus, these two executors were stepbrothers, both being the sons of Lucy Neville (d.1534). The testatrix refers to Sir Anthony Browne (c.1500-1548) as her 'cousin'. This may be because the testatrix' mother, Elizabeth Scrope (d. 10 May 1504) was the sister of Thomas Scrope (c. 1430-1475), 5th Lord Scrope of Masham, whose son, Thomas Scrope (b. c.1459, d. 23 April 1493), 6th Lord Scrope of Masham, married Elizabeth Neville (d.1515), the sister of Lucy Neville (d.1534). For the will of Elizabeth Neville Scrope Wentworth (d.1515), mentioning her sister, Lucy Neville (d.1534), see Testamenta Eboracensia, Vol. V, pp. 50-2, available online.

It is also of interest that Henry Scrope (b. c. 1373, beheaded 5 August 1415), 3rd Baron Scrope of Masham, elder brother of the testatrix's grandfather, John Scrope (b. c. 1388, d. 15 November 1455), 4th Baron Scrope of Masham, is the Lord Scrope who is implicated in the Cambridge conspiracy in the anonymous play Sir John Oldcastle, and is the Lord Scrope of Masham who is executed for his alleged part in that conspiracy in Act II, Scene 2 of Shakespeare's Henry V.

The testatrix leaves bequests to members of the Goldwell family:

Item, I bequeath to Agnes Goldwell, wife to James Goldwell. . . .

Item, I bequeath to Elizabeth Goldwell, daughter of the said Agnes Goldwell. . . .

Item, I bequeath to John Goldwell, son of the said Agnes, forty shillings sterling, and to George, her son, forty shillings sterling.

For James Goldwell and his wife, Agnes, who appears to have been the daughter of Thomas Sparrow or Lamondby (d. 21 October 1513), see:

In Bexley Parish Church there is a small memorial brass to a man named Thomas Sparrow, or Lamondby, who in his lifetime was a local landowner and sometime Deputy Reeve of the Manor of Bexley . . . The Latin inscription at his feet states that he died on 21 October 1513. Thomas made his will (P.R.O. Prob.11/17 f.24) on St. Gatheryne's Even 1505. He described himself as Thomas Lamondby, otherwise Sparrowe. . . . Agnes, who married James Goldwell of the Goldwells of Great Chart, is described in the Heralds Visitation of 1574 as "daughter of Thomas Lamaby of Lamaby. . . .

The earliest recorded owner of the estate was Thomas Sparrow, a reeve, in 1495. He died in 1513, and his daughter Agnes and her husband James Goldwell built the first house there, probably a timber house with later brick wings added. The Goldwell family sold the estate in the late 17th century, and the house and estate had several different owners, including Charles FitzRoy, the son of Charles II.

RM: T{estamentum} Eliz{abethe} Peche

In the name of God, Amen. The first day of August in the year of Our Lord God a thousand five hundred forty and one and in the 33rd year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord King Henry the Eight, I, Dame Elizabeth Peche, widow, sometime wife of Sir John Peche of Lullingstone in the county of Kent, knight, deceased, being in good, whole and perfect memory, lauded be Almighty God, make, ordain and declare this my present testament and last will in manner and form following, that is to say:

First I bequeath my soul to Almighty God, my Saviour, Maker and Redeemer, and to his Blessed Mother Saint Mary, and to all the holy company of heaven, and my body to be buried in the parish church of Lullingstone aforesaid within the tomb where the said Sir John Peche, my late husband, lieth buried;

Item, I bequeath to the high altar of the said parish church of Lullingstone ten shillings sterling;

Item, I bequeath to the high altar of the parish church of Eynsford ten shillings sterling;

Item, I bequeath to the parish church of Shoreham six shillings eight pence sterling;

Item, I will that mine executors shall cause a trental of Masses to be said within the said parish church of Lullingstone the day of my decease if they can get so many priests, and if they cannot, then the same to be done as soon after my decease as it conveniently may be, and likewise I will that one other trental be said in the said church of Lullingstone at my month's mind;

Item, I will that mine executors give and dispose in deeds of charity amongst the poor people next inhabiting to the said parish of Lullingstone at my burial forty shillings sterling or more, to be distributed by the discretion of mine executors, to pray for my soul, and likewise at my month's mind other forty shillings or more in like manner to be divided, distributed and dealt;

Item, I will that a priest be found to pray for my soul, my husband, Sir John Peche[‘s] soul, our friends' souls, and all Christian souls by the space of five years or more next after my decease as mine executors shall think convenient to be done;

Item, I bequeath unto my singular good Lord, the Earl of Southampton, Lord Privy Seal, two gilt bowls;

Item, I bequeath to George Hart, my godson, a gilt cup with a cover;

Item, I bequeath to every one of my gentlewomen that shall happen to wait upon me at the time of my decease ten shillings sterling;

Item, I bequeath to every one of my menservants that shall happen to be in my service at the time of my decease, over and above his or their wages due to them at the time of my decease, six shillings eight pence sterling;

Item, I bequeath to my sister, Agnes Redman, a gilt salt pounced with a cover, four gilt goblets with a cover, seven spoons with knobs, the bed that I lie in wholly as it standeth, one other bed in the chamber within the King's great chamber as it standeth, five other featherbeds of the meaner sort, a garnish of pewter vessel, all my kitchen stuff which I shall leave not bequeathed in this my will, seven pair of sheets, four tablecloths, if there be so many left, the hangings in my parlour, three chests, four coffers such as she will choose, six cushions, two carpets, one of them long and the other short;

Item, I bequeath to my sister, Agnes Scrope, one hanging of red and green say which hangeth in the chamber over the gate, and a white silver goblet;

Item, I bequeath to my sister, Dame Margaret Scrope, sometime a nun at Barking, five pounds sterling;

Item, I bequeath to Agnes Goldwell, wife to James Goldwell, a gilt cup with a rose in the top of the cover and a lion in the bottom, three silver spoons with knobs, three plain spoons, a plain silver goblet, one featherbed, a bolster, a counterpoint, one little cover such as my sister, Anne, shall appoint, a bed of wainscot, the featherbed, the bolster, the bed of white and green satin with the curtains and counterpoint as it standeth in the chamber over the nursery, one brass pot, one kettle, two spits and one chafing-dish;

Item, I bequeath to Elizabeth Goldwell, daughter of the said Agnes Goldwell, a plain goblet of silver and six pounds thirteen shillings four pence to her marriage in money or money worth to be paid and delivered to her in the day of her marriage, and if she happen to decease before she be married then I will that the said six pounds thirteen shillings four pence in money or money worth shall remain to her brethren to find them to school with;

Item, I bequeath to John Goldwell, son of the said Agnes, forty shillings sterling, and to George, her son, forty shillings sterling;

Item, I bequeath to my niece, Dame Anne Willestropp, a cross of gold with a ruby and a diamond, and my twelve beads of gold, with a ring of gold with a little cross;

Item, I bequeath to my niece, Elizabeth Kirkeby, my ring with a flat diamond;

Item, I bequeath to Eleanor Willestropp, daughter of my said niece, Dame Anne Willestropp, my drinking cruse of silver and gilt with two ears and a cover with a scutcheon with a pomegranate;

Item, I bequeath unto each one of my maiden-servants being with me at the time of my decease ten shillings sterling;

Item, I bequeath to my chaplain, Sir John Dean, parson of Lullingstone, to pray for my soul, one cup of silver and gilt, such one as mine executors will assign and appoint, one white silver goblet, two gilt spoons, two cushions and a short carpet;

Item, I bequeath to John Whytwood, my steward, my cup of silver and gilt [+with?] a lion in the top and also having a lion in the bottom of the said cup, and one white silver goblet;

Item, I bequeath to my friend, Sir John Baker, knight, my greatest cup of silver double gilt which I have used to lend to be borne before brides at their marriages and the covering of the same fashioned like a standing cup, and one of my greatest standard coffers;

Item, I bequeath to my Lady Baker my plate box of silver;
